

Monocasy River Hotspot

Phosphorus hotspots were calculated for both water quality stations on the Monocasy River, just south of the Pennsylvania line, while the Big Pipe Creek water quality station in an early tributary did not have a hotspot.

When investigating upstream of the Monocasy River stations I found that the river goes directly through and adjacent to golf courses, which are infamous for their overuse of phosphorus based fertilizers for their green.

